Manager Commentary

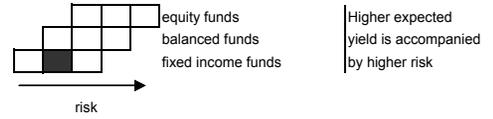

In February a change of benchmark was implemented for the fund. By this benchmark change, the overall strategy of the fund was changed to a shorter duration for the euro government part of the portfolio. This means that overall risk has changed from a long duration (around 6 year) to a shorter duration (1-3 year) and hence it means taking less risk in all euro-zone countries.

For the local market, the benchmark, and hence the strategy of the fund was changed into a longer duration, which means more risk is placed in the local market. This also corresponds well to our positive view on Estonia's way to EMU. In addition, the increasing focus on sound state finances made all EEK denominated assets to perform very well during the month.

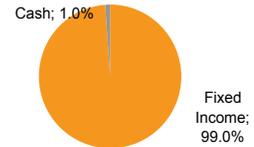

After the benchmark change, the fund has a very small overweight to Greece. Short Greece bond yields are still quite high, because of the recent turmoil. In our view, Greece is still offering a very high yield compared to other similarly rated assets.

Greece and Ireland were the best performing markets in February. Also Lithuanian bonds issued in EEK continued to outperform in February.
